SUBJECT : Railroad Rolling Stock Repair Plant in Stargard Szczecinski, Poland

50X1-HUM

1. The Railroad Rolling Stock Repair Plant (Zaklady Naprawcze Taboru Kolejowego) in Stargard Szczecinski (N 53-20, E 15-03) was a pre-war plant which repaired locomotives, passenger and all types of freight cars for the District Railroad Administration (Okregowa Dyrekcja Koleji Panstwowych) in Szczecin. It employed about 2,000 workers. [redacted] the plant seemed to be well-organized and equipped. It had all kinds of machine tools, including drilling, shaping, and grinding machines, and various types of small and large lathes; each of these was independent electrically driven. 50X1-HUM
2. [redacted] an order on behalf of the Szczecin Shipyard for a hub. This hub, which was to be manufactured at the plant, was required for a three-and-one-half-ton ship screw propeller measuring three meters in diameter. The order was completed in one week.
3. The plant occupied a large fenced-in area, and all buildings and workshops were of brick construction. It was guarded by armed railroad guards, [redacted]
